HAVE YOU HEARD FROM MAINE? ESCAPED FROM THE CONVENT

HOW THE DEMOCRATIC TARIFF BILL IS "ENDORSED."

The Greatest Majority in the State's History—Congressman Reed, Elected by 1,627 in 1892, Is Re-elected by 10,000 Majority.

After Long Planning a Sister Quietly Departs—But There's a Sequel to the Story.

There has been a good deal of talk recently in limited circles in this city about the escape of a Sister from the Convent of the Visitation.

Like a ball of snow, the longer it is rolled the larger it becomes, and so the wider a "secret" is spread the sooner it leaks out, for in this age of electricity and newspapers it is just a trifling short of the impossible to long keep things from the public eye and ear.

The story, as it came to THE LEDGER, is somewhat as follows:

Sister Mary Berchmans—whose worldly name is Miss Josephine Lane—is the daughter of well-to-do parents who live in New York.

For several years she had been a teacher of music, Latin, writing and sewing in the Convent, having been a former pupil of that institution.

Soon the novelty of Convent life wore off and she began planning an escape.

A few days after the recent closing exhibition exercises the opportunity came, and with the assistance of a brother and a Miss Theis of Georgetown, O., she walked quietly beyond the enclosure, leaving her "habit" behind. The young lady friend was of the same size as Sister Mary, and she provided an extra dress in which the Nun robed herself at the exit gate.

It was not long after till she was on board an Eastbound C. & O. train, speeding to her New York home as fast as steam could carry her.

The story is a pretty one, and forms the basis for a most entertaining novel; but here comes the sequel, furnished to THE LEDGER by the Convent authorities:

"FROM A CONVENT."

The Post correspondent who sent from Mayfield the special with above heading has things strangely confused.

As there is neither motive nor reason for concealment, we proceed to state the facts in the case:

The person whom the writer designates "Sister Josephine" was not Sister Josephine at all, but Sister Berchmans, and her family name, instead of being Buchman, was Lane. That Miss Lane's people are well-to-do is hardly possible, as she was received into the Community at Mayfield portentless, being unable to bring a dowry.

According to her own statement, in the letter which she left containing her alleged reasons for departure, her unnecessary escape had not been contemplated for two years but only for several months, probably dating from February, at which time she was removed from the corps of teachers in the Academy, being considered, on account of lightness of mind, unfit to guide young children. Miss Lane, however, did not credit the well known and excellent Academy at Mayfield, was never a pupil of said institution.

Let us pray some more! Peaches! Peaches! Now is the time to Martin Brothers.

Rev. C. N. Nugent, formerly of this city, who had been stationed at Paris the past year, expects to be returned by the Conference which meets at Frankfort this week.

By the will of the late Jesse Worthington the family residence, the proceeds of the farm and all money and notes are allotted to his wife, the former during her life. A farm on the Mayfield and Lewisburg dirt road is left to his oldest son, William D. Worthington. The other two, an expectant son and a daughter, left to his daughter, Mrs. Marie T. Wood, the residence to be hers also after the death of his wife. His gold watch is left to Robert Cook.

DA. C. P. DIETRICH, Health Officer, will do well to investigate the sanitary condition of the Letter Carriers.

Is this thing keeps on, the Department will fail if necessary to raise a Smelling Committee, to visit the Postoffices and small the Letter Carriers.

It is no longer in order to prefer charges of "offensive partisanship" against Republican officeholders. "Offensive partisanship" is now the proper paper.

THE LEDGER is not a defender of the Civil Service Law. Indeed, it is not the defender of any Democratic law enacted for partisan purposes.

Removing Letter Carriers. The Civil Service fraud was born in the brain of the late GEORGE H. PENDLETON, who was an all-orts politician toward the close of his career. He was once a Democratic Senator, a candidate for Vice-President on the Democratic ticket, and afterward became a frenzied advocate of the "no, baby" money law. When he died he was, by the grace of GROVER, United States Minister to Germany.

The affairs of UNCLE SAM had long been most successfully administered by Republicans, with little hope of the Democrats returning to power, and while in the Senate Mr. PENDLETON thought it would be a good thing to have a few Democrats fed at the public trough. With this idea he formulated the Civil Service Law, prescribing an examination of all candidates for certain appointments, and giving Democrats an equal chance with Republicans.

This law was passed by the Democ-rate, aided by Mugwumps in Congress and such "practical patriots" as the late GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS on the outside.

Soon after Democrats began breaking into the public service, and they continued doing so through successive Republican Administrations, the law being rigidly observed by them.

From time to time its operations were extended to different branches of the service, and just before going out of office at the close of his first term, Mr. CLEVELAND extended it to the entire railway postal system of the country.

Following the example of Mr. CLEVELAND, Mr. HARRISON, a few months before the expiration of his term, extended it to all Postoffices where the Free Delivery system is in operation.

This includes the Maysville Postoffice, where, by the untiring efforts of the Postmaster, and in spite of the predictions of some of our good citizens, the Free Delivery system was established in June, 1892.

Three Carriers and one Substitute were appointed, and these have served faithfully, and THE LEDGER believes acceptably to the patrons of the office, up to the present time.

Numbers of Democratic Postmasters throughout the country—notably Postmaster JONES of Portsmouth—have sought to remove Carriers by preferring charges of "offensive partisanship," and such other charges as a vivid imagination might conceive.

These attempted removals by partisan Postmasters became so numerous and so annoying to the Department that Postmaster General BISSELL issued an order that no removals should be made until Carriers were given an opportunity to be heard by the Department in dispute of the charges.

This brings us to the situation at the Maysville Postoffice.

THE LEDGER does not presume to criticise the desire of Postmaster CHENOWETH to have around him men of his own political faith. It believes that there are some Democrats who can probably carry letters as well as some Republicans, and it believes that some Republicans are as capable of managing public affairs as some Democrats, but what of the Democratic law which applies to the Postoffice? Among the many aphorisms of General GRANT none are more forceful than his declaration that "The best way to get rid of a bad law is to enforce it." So long as the Civil Service Law is a law, it should be observed by Democrats and Republicans alike. And so long as public servants give satisfaction to those whom they serve it is quite likely that they will continue in the service. They certainly will if the Administration itself is in earnest in its professions, and if the Department enforces the declarations of its chief.

But we will see what we will see.

The will of the late Mrs. Lucretia CAREY Bierbörger, which has been admitted to record, leaves all her property to her daughters, Ellen, Susan, Agnes, Grace and Fannie, share and share alike. She directs that there be no inventory and no appraisal, but that the heirs named take possession of the property as their own. She died a widow Monday. He went to Carlisle on the early train for Philadelphia and still the speaking stopped at 3 p. m., took the afternoon train for Paris, spent nearly two hours there, and then took a train for Lexington, spending nearly half an hour there, and returning home Monday evening on the same train that he went out on. Tell you these railroads are great things.
